Over the past two months, TRN has been diligently working to meet the new standards and complete all required paperwork, software revisions, and testing. While we have made progress, but the latest release still contains several technical issues that require further attention before the update can be considered stable.

What You Need to Know:

- Your current version of the TRN Mobile App (if installed previously) continues to operate correctly.
- The newly released version on the App Store and Play Store contains errors and may not function properly.
